9000 miles away and still on the helm

You are always in control, even from 9000 miles away when you have The Wireless Watchman system on your boat. Simply enter your password on any PC connected to the internet and you can see the complete status report on exactly what is going on with your boat.

This wireless system monitors practically all functions on the boat, including the bilge pump, the Hi-water switch, the battery voltage, the temperature, the shore power status, engine status and sensors for security, fire etc. Not only does it report when things fail, but it also gives indication of unusual behavior, like too many cycles from the bilge pump or low battery voltage, so you can avert problems before they occur. In addition, the built-in GPS tells you exactly where the boat is at all times and a special "Safe Zone" feature allows you to program where the boat is allowed to go.

Any violations or unusual activity are reported to you by e-mail, pager, cell phone, fax or via a 24 hour monitoring service. Now you never have to worry if the caretaker is giving side trips or if the bilge pump will work well during the oncoming storm. The system automatically updates the web page with the latest status every morning, but an instant live update is also available with a simple click.

The Wireless Watchman is available through your boat builder or your marine dealer.
